GS, ANTH 106-10 Cultural Studies and Globalization (SS)  4 credits CRN 20894, Summer 1
This course closely examines the complex relationship between culture and globalization. The impact of globalization on local culture is an essential topic. But the interaction of globalization and culture is not a one-way process. People around the world adapt globalization to their own uses, merging global cultural flows with local practices in transformative ways. The course will study the interaction of local culture with globalizing forces; immigration and culture; the localizing of mass culture; cultures of diasporic and migratory groups, and globalization, gender and identity. Professor Whitehouse; On-line

GS, SSP 126-10 The Political Economy of Globalization (SS)  4 credits CRN 21706, Summer 1
This course studies the relationship among economic, political and cultural forces in an era of globalization. Focus is on how global capitalism, the world market and local economies shape and are shaped by social, cultural and historical forces. Topics include political and cultural determinants of trade and investment; culture and the global economy; global capitalism, especially studied through the lens of culture; globalization and patterns of economic growth; crosscultural study of consumerism; poverty and inequality; the interplay of foreign and domestic economic policy; international economic organizations, such as the World Trade Organization, the International Monetary Fund, and the World Bank, and globalization and national development. Professor Austin; On-line

GS196-10 Immigration Literature (HU)  4 credits CRN 22004, Summer 2 ENG Attribute
This course focuses on the contemporary immigrant experience. It will introduce students to the writings of first, second, and third-generation immigrants who settled in the United States. Students will gain valuable insight into the immigrant experience before and after “the crossing.” We will discuss the ways in which literary texts and films portray issues related to gender, social justice, cultural identity, displacement, hybridity, and globalization. Students will read excerpts from Crossing into America: The New Literature of Immigration, and literary texts such as The Interpreter of Maladies, Lost in Translation, Funny in Farsi, Paper Fish, Breath, Eyes, Memory, and An American Brat. Professor Gamallo; On-line

GS, JOUR 246-10 International Communication (Summer) (SS)  4 credits CRN 22021, Summer 1
The subject matter is crucial to understanding modern life: the role of international news media in world affairs. The class studies the social, political and economic contexts that frame the reporting of international events by U.S. news media, such as politics, war, disasters, and other crises, as well as U.S. reporting on international issues, such as poverty, disease, and environmental change. The course also surveys reporting practices in nations around the world, including the varying systems of journalism and mass media and the brutal censorship and repression facing many foreign journalists. Professor Lule; On-line
